tant subject in his life-history. Some of the greatest crimes in history, he said, have been committed by epileptics. On the other hand the disease may be compatible with extraordinary mental power.

Alcoholism a Factor.

Dr. Phelan said that more than twenty-five per cent. of all insanity is due to alcohol and fully two-thirds of all crime is directly or indirectly due to the same cause. He estimated that fully twenty per cent of the insane inmates of penal institutions are mentally defective in some form or other. He recommended the registration and segregation of epileptics, but asserted that they did not, like the feeble-minded and alcoholics, properly belong to a prison or reformatory and should be fostered and protected. Crime, Dr. Phelan said, reaches its highest point between the ages of twenty and thirty, "because during these years man's physical development is rapidly moving toward completion. It is during these years that the worst and most diffusive passions take almost complete possession of lim, and his reason has not yet sufficiently developed by which he can nope, unless by careful guidance and the moral and social education of a home, to sait safely on the unexplored seas of life."

DOUGHERTY REVIEWS WATER WORKS CASE

MATTER OF COMPENSATION FOR PLANT ONE OF MOST IM-PORTANT QUESTIONS.

AWAIT RACINE VERDICT

Railroad Commission Delays Any Ad tion in Janesville Situation Until Supreme Court Decision is Given.

The Racine water case was submitted to the supreme court for its decision, last Friday and an opinion will in all probability be handed down within the next week or ten days. City Attorney Dougherty, when asked about the relation of that case to the local situation, submitted the following prepared statement:

"In 1911 the city of Racine voted to purchase its water works plant and in the following spring, 1912, the city of Janesville had the same vote. In both cases the question was somewhat informally submitted and did not follow the exact wording of the law. The question submitted to the electors of our city was "Shall the city of Janesville purchase the Janesville Water Company." This alleged defect in the submission of the question, goes to the proposition as to whether or not the matter was sa ership of the meters will also be taken care of.

Must Wait Settlement.

These matters will all enter into the final valuation to be placed upon the plant, and will all be taken care of in proper season. The present administration has no intention of making to the water company of any liability it may sustain, nor releasing it from any obligation fixed upon it, and what is more it couldn't do so if it desired. As has been said so many times before the final adjustment of this whole proposition lies with the railroad commission and when the present difficulty is disposed of prompt steps will be taken to bring this matter to a hearing, and upon this hearing the rights of users under the new rate will be determined as will also the estimation of the municipality.

"I have gone perhaus into unecesdefect in the submission of the question, goes to the proposition as to whether or not the matter was so submitted as to be fairly understood by the voters. The contention of the water company has been that there was an opportunity for the voters to be misled as to just what they were purchasing, and further that there was no warrant in law for purchasing the company, but only the plant. Personally I never had any doubt but that the submission was sufficient under the law and entertained no doubts upon that quesentertained no doubts upon that ques

Attitude of Court.

"During the course of the argument last Friday the court very clear by indicated that an informal submisly indicated that an informal submission of the question would be sustatined, provided it was so submitted as to get a fair expression from the electors. That there could be any confusion in the minds of the voters, by reason of the form of this question seems altogether impossible. As said before I have absolutely no doubt but what the submission was sufficient under the law, although it would have been much better if a more accurate statement had been made.

as yill also the estimation of the municipality.

I have some perhaus into unecessary detail in presenting this matter but I desire that a full fair stalement of the case may be made in order that the situation may be learly understood.

"There is, however, one very serious question in the case, which has to do with the sufficiency of the law. At the time when the question of the purchase of the company was submitted, no provision was made for the payment of the price that might subsequently be lixed by the rail road commission. The council of the city were absolutely without power to pay for the plant. The public utility law provides that when the rail road commission files its judgment of valuation the "exclusive use" of the plant falls to the city, but nothing was said about the time or method of payment. For instance there is the argument advanced by the public utilities—Supposing that the railroad commission should make its findings that the water works plant in question was worth three hundred thousand dollars, and further supposing that when the question of raising this three hundred thousand dollars is submitted to the voters they refuse to pay for it, or to vote the fund from which it might be paid, how can the city complete the purchase? Certainly the council couldn't spread such a sum upon one year's tax roll. Such a course is too absurd to discuss.

Bond issue Required. "There is, however, one very ser such a sum upon one year's tax roll. Such a course is too-ubsurd to discuss.

Bond Issue Required.

"It is generally conceded that the only possible way in which a city of this size could raise three hundred thousand dollars is by the issue and sale of its bonds and the electors have the right to have this question submitted to them. If the common council was so foolish as not to voluntarily submit it to them in the first instance, they could demand its submission by filing a petition signed by some two hundred voters. Now then the further contention of the public utility is that we cannot take its property for a public use until the electors have irrevocably committed themselves to a sufficient mode of payment. The power of the common council to spend money has been limited by the constitution of the state. This limitation is based upon the proposition that it is not wise to allow city officials unlimited power of taxation. The constitution provides that before a city shall become indebted in a way to auticipate its current revenues, it shall on or before that time provide for the collection of a direct annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to pay and discharge the principal thereof within twenty years from the time of contracting the debt. The utilities take the position that we must comply with this provision of the constitution before we take on a debt of this kind and that we must comply with it in such a way as to create a safe fund out of which they may secure their pay.

"The further query has been made—Why the rates fixed by the railroad commission have not been applied during the pendency of this purchase case. INSTALL PRIVATE PHONES AT HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING

Three private phones were installed at the high school building yesterday, and they are in working order today. There is one on each floor, the office phone, being at the bright red strawberries. He picked clerk's desk, while the phone on the second floor is in Prof. Shafer's room. The third floor station is in Miss Railey's domestic science room. This new system will give prompt service between all members of the faculty, and will save much time, which was before lost in running up and down stairs.

While wandering through his gar den this morning at his home, 1121 was greatly suprised to find several bright red strawberries. He picked all that were ripe and then investigated again. The vine is in good conditions and stontains many green berries, which are ripening. If the weather remains, as warm as it has been, many more may be picked within the near future.

GREAT LACE SALE Continues Until Saturday Evening

IF we ever had any doubts about the success of our new department for Real Laces, we have no doubts left now. They came, they saw, we conquered. We knew that to convince you of the genuine economy of investing in Real Laces, we had only to show you the beautiful product of the Austrian Lace Makers and to point out the extremely modest prices that we are asking for these lovely Real Lace collars, yokes, medallions, etc. Now here is an example of how far a small investment will carry you:

--suppose you have bought this beautiful Real Cluny Lace Collar for

You get a full season's wear out of it and then you decide that it will make a rich trimming for a waist. Having served its purpose on the waist, sometime later it will come in nicely for a corset cover or night gown. Its next appearance is on a girl's dress, and after that it will still serve for the baby's cap or for a fancy pillow-top. Even now you are not through with it by any means but hasn't it already been useful enough to make your original investment of $2 look pretty small?

You couldn't have done all this with machine-made lace

It never has the quality-look of Real Lace, you tire of it more quickly and it wont' give you the wear of Real Lace. If you've been accustomed to thinking of Real Lace as a luxury beyond your means, you'll have to change your mind now. It isn't a luxmy the way we are selling it—it's an investment, a real economy that will pay for itself over and over again.

Come in and get acquainted

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIC

WANTED-BIG MEN. Want a job-a big job-one paying

$6,000 a year? If you can fill it the government is looking for you. It is going to make a physical valuation of the railroads of the country, and it needs the men who can assist in the work. It is willing to pay them well, according to government standards,

Of course the men who could earn Uncle Sam's $6,000 a year are earn ing more in private employ, and will give up their higher salaries only at the urging of patriotism. Some have already done so.

The point is, the government needs $6,000 men, and others need them too There are plenty of $1,200 men and $600 men, but $0,000 men are scarce. It is so all over.

A man of large affairs once said to the late J. Pierpont Morgan; "I am tired out and should like to take a trip to Europe, but I can't get away from my business. I should like to find a man whom I could intrust with it for awhile, . placing him in charge of the details. If I could get such a man I would be willing to pay him $25,000 a year. The rest from business would be worth much more than that to me. Perhaps you have in your employ some such man whom you could spare for a year."

Morgan, keenest of judges of men.

"If I had such a man I'd pay him $100,000 a year. And I couldn't spare Another man was talking about young women stenographers; "I need a good stenographer, and I am willing to pay her well." be said. "I can find plenty of cheap spenographers, but I can't seem to find one who will be worth $30 a week to me." The moral of all this is: Make your self worth the higher salary. Every bit of knowledge, gained, every instance of good judgment exercised, every case of niertness displayed, means higher valuation of the man in the case.

ASKS FOR A REFORM IN LATEST DANCES

Mrs. John G. Rexford, Addressing State D. A. R., Says New Dances Are Here to Stay.

Mrs. John G. Rexford of this city, state chairman of the committee on welfare of women and children of the state D. A. R., in her report to the convention at La Crosse on Wednesday, created something of a sensation by advocating reform of the latest dances, more liberal sex education, and better pay for teachers.

"I believe that the new dances are here to stay," said the speaker. "Some of you may believe that I know not of what I am talking because I have no children, but I do and I have given the matter serious study. The one-step and the other latest dances are attracting the young people and it is far better to reform them than to attempt to exterminate them. If they can not be danced properly they should not be tolerated."

from Mheral Point to Milwaukee, two miles west of this city near the high bridge over Fisher's creek, Engineer Edward Hobbs stated at the Janesville station that on coming around the hill west of the city, he saw a body lying directly across the tracks, as if dead. Before he could apply the brakes, the train crashed over the body, mangling it terribly.
The train crew were forced to take portions of the unfortunate boy's body from under the pilot, where it had become wedged.
The train was over an hour late and was traveling at an excessive rate of speed trying to make up time.
The engine was so close upon the prostrate body before the engineer discovered it, that stopping was impossible.
Jaich, it is said, had been sent to the Mendota asylum for treatment and suffered from mental diseases.
Workmen at the stone crusher plant saw the young man walking out on the Hanover tracks, in the afternoon, and apparently he was on a hickory nutting excedition. On his way home, it is probable that he was selzed with a fit or became helpless in some manner and fell across the tracks before the coming train.

MISS SHERER WEDDED WEDNESDAY EVENING

Only Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Sherer Becomes Bride of Edward Litts.

Last evening sixty people assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Sherer on Madison street as guests at the marriage of Clara Belle, only daughter of the house, to Edward Litts, The guests were relatives and intimate friends, all interested in the two young people whose high school friendship they had watched developing deeper feeling.

friendship they had watched develop into deeper feeling.

Promptly at eight o'clock the strains of nuptial music sounded. Miss Laila Soverhill sang two selections with Edgar Kohler at the piano. When the notes of the wedding march were heard, Mr. Litts entered the parlor attended by his brother, Carl, and the matron of honor, Mrs. Russell Davis of Minneapolis, met them before the drapery of vines and flowers which covered the west wall of the room. The bride descended the stairs and entered on her father's arm, the bridal party taking places before the wedding service.

bridal party taking places before the Rev. Dr. Beaton who performed the wedding service.

The bride was gowned in a beautiful robe of Brussells lace over white satin, with a veil of the same material fastened with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of lilles of the valley. Her only ornament was a pearl and diamond pendant, the groom's gift.

The matron of honor was gowned in pale mink crepe and carried pink roses. The bride's mother wore violet satin draped with chiffon.

The supper room was beautifully decorated in pink and green, this scheme of color being used all through the house.

The wedding was unusually joyous and festive, the young couple being held in high esteem by many friends, and the culmination of their life-time triendship and love could be nothing but happy. Both were graduated from the Janesville high school. Then Mr. Litts entered employment at the First National bank, and Miss Sherer studied music at Northwestern university, the close friendship of the young couple meanwhile never abating.

The Evening Chit-Chat BY RUTH CAMERON

REVIVING OLD PLEASURES.

ACKWARD, turn backward, oh time, in thy flight,
Make me a child again just for tonight."

"The cross-town car will be here at 5:22," said the conductor, as he put me down at the little country crossroads.

I consulted my watch. Horrors, a full hairhour and I hadn't even a scrap of newspaper to read. And I couldu't take a walk because I had a heavy suit-case. Then I caught sight of a tiny shop and crossed over to look in its single window. The chief decoration was a round glass jar filled with pink and white peppermint sticks. Now, gazing into a crystal ball is supposed to have a strange and powerful effect on the mind. Perhaps, the glass jar had a similar psychic influence. Anyhow, as I looked at that round, glass jar of peppermint sticks, I suddenly became a child again, with a damp pentry clutched in a moist palm, and in an instant I had tugged open the screen door and was standing in front of the low, glass case of candy which I knew I should find.

It was like meeting old friends. There they all were. The same candies that had charmed away the pennies on those days when a penny was an event.

were. The same candies that had charmed away the pennies on those days when a penny was an event.

The first thing I bought was a cent's worth of all-day suckers, still two-for-a-cent—apparently the high cost of living had not yet affected the low, glass cases. Mindful of my old preference, I bought a bright green and a brown one. What colors did you like best? Of course, you remember what they are. Hard, round balls that will last, if not all day, at least all of an hour; that is, if you suck them carefully and don't taken on the runch.

hour: that is, if you suck them carefully and don't crunch.

Jelly beans in a little glass mug came next. You remember that little glass mug in which the smaller candies were meted out? And didn't you always feel that if the measuring were left to you, you could make it hold a good deal more?

A-string of licorice was my next purchase. One of those long, ropey affairs that always seemed to me such an extraordinary value for the money expended, and which, for the same reason, I was never allowed to buy.

A pink peppermint and a white peppermint were my next extravagance. They are aristocrats among penny candy, being rated at the exhorbitant price of one for a cent. In the old days when time was plenty and pennics scarce, I used to spend aeons deciding between the two colors. Today, I calmly ordered both and marveled at my own recklessness.

Four follypops, a prize package (with pop-corn and a diamond ring in it), one of the peppermint barber poles, and a pickle lime, that symbol of school-girl days, were also purchased with regal recklessness. I do not think the biggest check I ever received made me feel richer than I did as I left the shop with these treasures, between which the little girl of long ago had to make a difficult choice.

Try it sometime, reader friends. Truly, it's a fleeting taste of childhood. But first listen to a warning. If you want to keep your golden memory of the toothsomeness of these candies of the long ago, give them to the first little boy you meet and give them to him before you have sampled them, not after, as I did.

sheils, saving all the juice; drain this from the cysters and add the milk in the double boiler and set over the fire. While this is heating, place the spider over the fire with the butter; do not brown, but when it is hot add the cysters and stir carefully over the fire until they are plump and the edges begin to look slightly curled. Now add the milk to the cysters and continue to watch and stir until the first bubble comes. Salt and pepper to taste. Bulk cysters may be used instead of shell, but the flavor is not so fine. Less seasoning is necessary in this manner, and a better flavor than any other method of cooking. The spider is used because it has a large cooking surface and cysters are cooked more quickly.

LATE PRESERVES AND PICKLES.

After all the fall canning is done one finds a few of the late fruits and vegetables just coming into market Malaga grapes at ten cents a pound are not too expensive for a few preserves for variety. Wash the grapes and seed them by cutting an icision with scissors, and remove the seeds with a bodkin or darning needle. Fill cans with the grapes and pour boiling hot pineapple sirup over them. The next morning drain and boil down the sirup until thick. Pour again over the fruit and let stand again over night. In the morning drain again, boil up the sirup, add the grapes, and when boiling hot seal. This is delicious used in fruit salads, gelatines, desserts and punches.

Money Saved by Making Your Cough Syrup at Home Takes But a Few Moments, and Stops a Hard Cough in a Hunry.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add ½ pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. It keeps perfectly. You will find it one of the best cough syrups you aver used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually conquers an ordinary cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and the taste is pleasant.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup, hoarseness and bronchial astams.
